Earth Angels at Cypress Lawn

You are my special angel

Through eternity

I'll have my special angel

Here to watch over me

Bobby Vinton, Special Angel (1963)

More prolific than obelisks or even crosses, these intermediaries between humankind and heaven dominate the grounds of Cypress Lawn. No other cemetery in Colma has anywhere near the number and varieties of angels.

Angels do not need to have wings. They are, all after, spirits unbound by the laws of nature. Both the Old and New Testaments often present angels appearing as human beings. In fact, Hebrews 13:2 admonishes: "Do not neglect to show hospitality to strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unawares."

Although winged angels have dominated Christian art from its earliest days, they are largely an embellishment to give more drama and spirituality to the form. Many of these angels seem to the modern eye to be either male or female by their dress, body shape, or poses, but for almost two millennia they were generally regarded as genderless.

This perception and depiction changed in the nineteenth century, especially in countries influenced by English Victorian styles, and most notably in cemetery memorials. The Victorians turned mourning into an art form, and they wanted the experience to be intimate. The East campus of Cypress Lawn and the early sections of the public mausoleum represent this classic genre. The angels you see (with a few exceptions) are intended to be female, and some are wingless creatures, appearing very human.

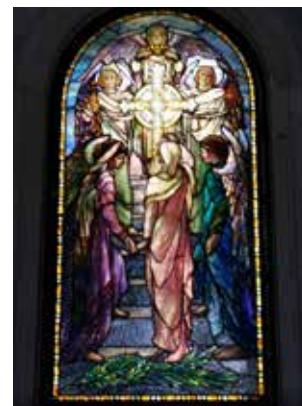

Imagine Cypress Lawn without its angels. It would be a less inviting and comforting space. Angels are our connection here to a higher being and our lost loved ones. These creatures are us, expressing facial emotions and body language, guiding the mourner or observer with a familiar and sympathetic presence.

Every angel at Cypress Lawn — statuary or stained glass — is a unique, one-of-a-kind work. The artistic origins of many remain unknown. All were commissioned, but relatively few are signed. The records of purchase, if they still exist, are in the hands of individual families.

Cypress Lawn Becomes Official Level I Arboretum

Trees have always been a centerpiece here at Cypress Lawn, dating back to our beginnings in 1892, when Founder Hamden Holmes Noble brought in plant materials from around the world to create a stunning, park-like setting along the Bay Area peninsula. More than a century later, Cypress Lawn is widely known for its breathtaking views, historic chapels, and expertly crafted statuary – and now we are thrilled to add a new accreditation: Global network ArbNet has officially recognized Cypress Lawn as a Level 1-certified arboretum!

To be considered for ArbNet's Level 1 accreditation, Cypress Lawn has to have a publicly accessible site with a minimum number of 25 species of trees or woody plants, along with a governing body, an arboretum plan, and staff or volunteers to ensure fulfillment of the plan.

This accreditation is an important milestone for Cypress Lawn, reflecting the uniqueness of our historic 200-acre property, and our mission to provide a beautiful place of rest for those families interred – as well as a peaceful sanctuary for their descendants.

Our Arboretum uniquely includes trees indigenous to the Northeast right here in Northern California, including the live oak, scrub oak, and a variety of pines. These are in addition mature trees from all parts of the world, with a wide array of North American, European, and Australian species. Many plants, trees, and shrubs were selected for their conveyance of love, grief, happiness, or religious meaning, much like the use of plant materials in art and architecture.

At Cypress Lawn, we observe tree planting throughout the year, and offer free trolley tours as a community service and educational experience through the Cypress Lawn Heritage Foundation. There are also opportunities for families to memorialize their loved ones through the Foundation's Horticultural Remembrance Program, part of our Living Legacy Society.

We take great pride in preserving and promoting our 125-year history, and our timeless arboretum is at the heart of it. We make every effort to meet the needs of each person in our community, ensuring that all our friends and neighbors can take in the spectacular beauty of Cypress Lawn. To that end, we offer our docent-led public trolley tours of Cypress Lawn, featuring information about our history, famous people who rest here, and the many treasures that live at Cypress Lawn. We also provide detailed maps for self-guided tours, lectures on a variety of topics, and even a mobile app allowing you to search for loved ones and navigate to any gravesite.

Join us in celebrating our Level I Accreditation by visiting us and viewing one of the most beautiful natural areas in the world. We like to say that Cypress Lawn offers a glimpse of heaven on earth; it's one you'll want to see for yourself.

Cypress Lawn Cemetery Association

Cypress Lawn is a 501 (c)(3) not for profit corporation established in 1892 by a group of prominent and responsible citizens, headed by Hamden Noble, determined to provide a decent cemetery for all creeds and races as well as "an attractive and pleasing place for meditation of the living." Today, over a hundred years later, Cypress Lawn stands as a testament to the vision of these men when they proclaimed, "... in the fullness of time, the cemetery... will form an extensive park, rich in foliage, flowers, mausoleums, statuary and other works of art ... a handsome gift to posterity."

Stereopticon Party!

This device was a wildly popular form of Victorian parlor entertainment and education before the advent of motion pictures. A stereopticon is hand-held, manual instrument that turns into a 3-D "projector" when a special photo card super-imposes two images is inserted - an early version of the 1950s View Master.

We will have plenty of stereopticon viewers and an array of great of images available for full audience participation.

At Rest in Cypress Lawn WHO AM I ?

I was a Superstar in my day. But many think my greatest achievement was to marry three of the most beautiful, sought-after ladies in Hollywood.

I crooned one hit record after another. I had two TV shows of my own and made so many guest appearances it was hard to turn on the tube without seeing my curly locks.

By the late 1970s, I was falling out of style. I attempted an unsuccessful comeback tour in 1983.

When I published my autobiography, I revealed new details of my personal dalliances. When my daughter, a famous actress, read the book, she declared: "That's it. I'm having my DNA fumigated."

Sure I had five wives, but the fifth one was the charm — lovely dancer and choreographer Betty Lin who passed away in 2001, eight years after we were married. I placed her in a niche at Cypress Lawn and joined her in 2010.

There are three general types of angels: the triumphant, looking to heaven as a better place; the mourning, grieving over the loss of a loved one; and the pensive/stoic.

Although there are exceptions to the following rule, Catholics prefer triumphant angels, pointing upward to the glory of eternal life while ignoring or downplaying the grief of a human passing. Protestants place more emphasis on the loss of a life on earth, and the pain and sorrow it causes the living. Pensive Angels can range from mourning to stoic.

For those who believe that angels can come in any form or species, I offer this Cypress Lawn memorial.

Our outdoor museum is open to the public and free. Take a stroll through heaven.

WHY CYPRESS LAWN?

William Gladstone said: "Show me the Manner in which a nation or community cares for its dead and I will measure with mathematical exactness the tender sympathies of its people, their respect for the laws of the land and their loyalty to high ideals."

Every human being is faced with stressful events. The most stressful is the death of a spouse or loved one. The many decisions to be made and items to be paid can be overwhelming. Since 1892, the licensed trained associates at Cypress Lawn have guided our community through difficult times ensuring they are able to celebrate life, heal from their loss, and really have time to remember those they love. Families selecting Cypress Lawn and its affiliates report the value exceeded the cost, the staff was incredibly caring and they are happy they trusted us. When you have one chance to tell your loved one's story — choose Cypress Lawn.

WOODSMEN OF THE WORLD AT REST IN CYPRESS LAWN

Tucked away in Section F on the East Side of Cypress Lawn lay more than a dozen Woodsmen of the World monuments, products of a “fraternal benefit society” that administers a privately held insurance fund, a major part of which is funeral coverage.

Beginning in 1882, it has undergone many mergers and transformations and still operates today. The original inspiration came from the founder, who upon hearing a sermon about “pioneer woodsmen clearing away the forest to provide for their families,” wanted to start a society that “would clear away problems of financial security for its members.” There are currently about 800,000 participants.

States are called either “Jurisdictions” or “Head Camps.” Local groups were organized into “coves” or “groves”, but today are known as “chapters.” Fraternalists pledge to “help others and promote patriotism and civic responsibility.”

The Cypress Lawn examples shown here are all prior to 1940, when the distinctive stumps and emblems were in vogue. By the late 1920s, these kinds of tributes were growing too expensive and more traditional memorials began to be used.
